

College of Arts 2010

Introduction:

Believing that distributing science and culture among people is its duty, the Ministry of Higher Education and Scientific Research decided to establish the College of Arts at the University of Babylon on the 6th of November, 2004 A.D., the 23rd of Ramadhan, 1425 H. The intention behind this decision is to make the new College an educational edifice, a centre for publishing human social sciences, qualifying specialists and researchers in these sciences.

The College contains two departments; Department of Arabic Language and Department of Archaeology.

The Deanery of the College of Arts endeavors to make this College as a house of science which takes care of human beings since they are the cornerstone of intellectual and social development and promotion, and the enforcement of the dedication for seeking human knowledge, in addition to qualifying groups of academic researchers in different human sciences. All the above must be implemented by giving lectures within the course of four-year study and by the cultural sessions and academic seminars held in the departments of the College.. Although the present building of the College does not suit its needs, the deanery has as its duty to continue its efforts in presenting whatever possible to enable students to get the best chances for learning and training in their specialties so as to fulfill its educational and scientific duty.

The deanery has decided that the anniversary day is 6th of November; that is to celebrate and welcome new candidates.

Department of Arabic Language

Introduction

Language is the most important source of cultural heritage of the nation, and it is the symbol of its identity. This is the situation of the other languages which might vanish for one reason or another, but the situation is totally different with the Arabic Language which is distinguished for its being eternal because Allah, Glory to Him, has chosen it to be the language of the Holy Quran.

The responsibility of the Department of Arabic Language is to secure and enhance the role of Arabic in accordance with the basic targets of saving the Language of the Holy Quran, enriching the students' awareness of the heritage of the nation and its civilization, escorting the development of modern sciences, and looking up to the future.

Objectives

The Department aims at:

- Enabling students to have a better verbal command in Arabic, especially in the skills of speaking and writing.
- Qualifying researchers and specialists in linguistics and literature of the Arabic Language.
- Developing the abilities of the talented students.
- Working as effectively as possible on the dissemination of awareness of special importance of the language and its literature in the cultural life of the society and among scholars.
